LOCAL MAN LEASES PARK
NEAR TIFFIN, FOSTORIA

John K. Schwinger Starts Construction of Large Dance Pavilion on Grounds

Meadowbrook Park, located on the Tiffin-Fostoria road midway between those cities, has been leased for 10
by John K. Schwinger, who has started construction of a large dance pavilion
on the grounds.

The pavilion, measuring 80 by 60
feet, will be a double-unit structure, part under roof and the other section uncovered for outdoor dancing. The foundation has been laid and the pavilion will be ready for use by June 20,
according to present plans.

Well-Known Resort

Meadowbrook Park is one of the best-known pleasure resorts and recreation centers in the vicinity of Tiffin and Fostoria. It is equipped with various amusement devices and is ideally equipped for picnics, reunions and similar gatherings, many of which are held there during the warm weather season.

Mr. Schwinger will continue operation of his pavilion at Mt. Gilard, which was opened last year, and also his dance hall in this city. He will be assisted in management of the three places by his son, John Schwinger, Jr.

The Dixie orchestra of this city, directed by John Schwinger, Jr., will play at Meadowbrook Park and the Mt.
Gilard pavilion during the summer.

Public Still Fearful in Air, Aviation Man Finds

Official Believes, However, Coming Generation Will Regard It Differently

By CHARLES F. STEWART

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Was back in the days when folks were laughing over the first edition of Joe Miller's Joke Book this story was a monthly old chestnut:

"An aged dork was explaining why, though undaunted by the perils of railroad travel, he drew the line on water transportation."

"It had been pointed out to him that it hurt no worse to be drowned at sea than to be ground up above, and that the number of fatalities by the alternative methods didn't differ widely, if any."

The venerable Ethiopian couldn't see it.

"Kub-amah goes to train," he said, "an' yo' is. Down goes yo' boat, an' what is you?"

An ancient chestnut! Yet, according to the reasoning of William F. MacCracken, Jr., assistant secretary of commerce in charge of aeronautics, the old dork's frame of mind paralleled the frame of mind of people who never turn a hair at the idea of careening over the landscape in a rocket-ship automobile, but blanch at the thought of going up in a nice, safe plane, with a careful pilot in charge.

The dork didn't want to be mangled in a railroad wreck, but if it happened he could stand it. A land-lubber, drowning seemed to him like a strange, terrible kind of death, at which he shuddered.

An autoist attended to the dangers of the streets and highways. They don't perturb him. Aviation dangers are new to his mental processes. They give him the shivers.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF COMMERCE MacCracken can't remember a time when automobiles weren't pretty numerous, but occasionally he meets some elderly individual who's still more or less leery of them.

He calculates that there must have been a stage of the game when they were quite generally regarded as safest to hop out of.

Just so with airplanes? MacCracken reckons so. He's aware that many persons are still afraid of aviation, though a goodly number who were afraid of it originally have outgrown their earlier nervousness now.

The aeronautics secretary believes the coming generation will regard flying as inconspicuously as the present one regards the auto.

MacCracken had a chance to try Mauth's theory recently, at an aviation show given by the commerce department in Washington.

Free rides were an important feature of the occasion.

The department's trying to popularize flying, and the officials' view was that folk who took sufficient interest in it, and had the nerve to go aloft, ought to be encouraged. So they weren't stingy about it.

But what attracted their attention was that the clamorous ones were nearly all very young—mere children.

TYPE oldsters hung back. With a few exceptions they weren't at all willing to leave terra firma even in response to cordial invitations. When they did accept, they gripped their teeth, and gave every indication of feeling that they were committing themselves to a desperate venture.

Answers—XII, 16.

Little boys and girls, clumped about and snored into the heavens as they slept as the average citizen takes a street car.

"A new psychology" is Secretary MacCracken's diagnosis.

MacCracken does, indeed, expect to see aviation develop and expand with the mechanical improvement of planes and the extension of their range.

He expects still more, however, from an armed generation, now in its infancy.

WORK OF INSTALLING NEW HYDRANTS STARTED

First Six-Inch Type Placed at Intersection of S. Prospect, Church-sts.

Work of installing the new six-inch fire hydrants which are to replace the smaller ones now in use in the business district of the city was started Saturday with the first hydrant being installed at the intersection of S. Prospect and Church-sts.

Instead of placing the hydrants at the point of street intersection as has been the custom in the past, they are being placed from 10 to 15 feet from the corner.

The change was made for two reasons, Fire Chief McFarland said today, to prevent their being broken off by careless automobile drivers and also to have them out of the way in event the fire department chooses to cut back the corner.

The new hydrants will permit a flow of 600 gallons a minute while those being taken out had a capacity of only 100 gallons. There will be 52 of these hydrants installed.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT "WAR" MANEUVERS STARTS ON PAGE 1

Starting at one minute after midnight, it becomes officially the "war," and here all contact with the world until it strikes in its attempt to evade the big coast defense guns and land its theoretical invading army.

The "war" is directed by Admiral
Hagley, aboard the fleet flagship Seattle. Aboard are Secretary of Navy
Curtis D. Wilbur, Maj. Gen. Hanson
Ely, president of the army war college, and a number of ranking army observers.

ARMY AWAITS ATTACK OF NAVY

Fort Adams, Newport, R. I., May 16—Along the coast of New England, the United States Army, primed for battle, today awaited a smashing attack from the sea by the powerful United States Navy.

The army, charged with protecting the coast of New England, and, incidentally, New York city from the "enemy," was determined to circumvent any and all attempts of the navy to land a "hostile" force on United States soil.

It is a grim business, judging by the war the army is going at, but after all it is only a war game—the annual joint army-navy maneuvers which began this morning to continue throughout the week. For the purpose of the maneuvers, the army will be known as the "blue" defenders and the navy the
"black" attackers.

Army Gets "Flash"
Flashing into the army intelligence
office at Fort Adams came radio messages this morning apprising the defenders of the fact that the "black"
fleet—battleships, cruisers, destroyers, submarines, airplanes, all now merged into one weapon of attack—is "somewhere at sea" and within striking distance of the New England Coast.

Within the next few days if not sooner,
the fleet will attempt to land a theoretical force of 75,000 men, moving them shoreward in transports in the rear of the battleships.

If they succeed in landing these troops, the big industrial centers of New England not only will be menaced
but it would be quite possible for them to march on to the great city of New York with its huge store of gold and millions of people.

Navy's Powerful Fleet
That's what the army is going to prevent, if it can. Theoretically, Maj.
Gen. Preston Brown, in command of the defenders, has available for the protection of the coast 70,000 men. Actually, however, he has about 2,500, stationed at various points in the Narragansett area. But this skeletonized force admirably answers for the purpose of the maneuvers.

The navy has gone into this "battle" with the most powerful fleet in its history, with 37,000 men in its ships and with far greater powers of destruction and of resistance than it possessed at the close of the World War.

The defending troops will have some naval assistance, a few submarines and a number of destroyers that are normally used in time of war for harbor defense.

Maneuvers Competitive
Airplanes will be used by both sides,
the "black" fleet launching its craft
from the great airplane carrier, the "Langley."

Indications today were that the maneuvers will prove realistic and highly competitive. The maneuvers, however, are not intended to support any preconceived ideas as to the relative powers of naval attack and land defense.

Rather the main object is to test in-tactical plans now existing and to give practice in co-operation between land
and naval forces.

Let's this week umpire will hold a critique, reckoning the success and the failure in the forthcoming battles and announce who has won the "war."

WET AND DRY ISSUE BEFORE MEDICAL MEET

Prohibition, Anti-Prohibition Tactics Discussed at Washington Gathering

Washington, May 16—The prohibition issue overshadowed medical questions as 4,000 physicians gathered here today for the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Medical Association.

The wet and dry question came to the front when Dr. Charles C. Caphart, president of the association, announced impending legislation, composed largely of physicians, issued a statement attacking efforts of wets and dries to influence the convention attitude toward the dry law. Cap-hart said his association was interested only in obtaining pure liquor for medical use and in removing red tape
from the process of dispensing in dis-pensating liquor for medicinal purposes.

His statement was in reply to a letter written several days ago by William H. Stetson, national chairman of the association, against the prohibition amendment, who charged dry leaders were trying to "stack" the convention in favor of prohibition. Stetson charged Wayne B. Wheeler, dry generalissimo, had written to anti-saloon league leaders throughout the country urging them to see that physicians, who were "right"
on the prohibition question, attended the convention.

"Neither the wets nor dries should undertake to capitalize the influence of the great American Medical Association for political gain," said Caphart. "The American Medical Association is pronounced and established as a non-political, non-sectarian, medical body, devoted purely to medical and scientific standards of the highest order. It is therefore deplorable that the professional prohibitionist and professional anti-prohibitionist should seek to use the convention as a vehicle for partisanship or prejudice."

The program of the convention includes an address by President Coolidge tomorrow night.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT ACCIDENTS, STARTS ON PAGE 1

owned and driven by P. M. Clark, of Annapolis, Md.

The Clark machine was going north on Greenwood-st. and had partly crossed Church-st. when struck by the Borland car, going east. Both machines skidded on the slippery pavement and came to a stop at the northwest corner of the intersection, the Annapolis car turning over on its right side. The running board on that side was wrecked, the glass demolished and the machine otherwise damaged.

Both front wheels of Mrs. Borland's car were torn off.

In the machine with Mrs. Borland
was her three-year-old daughter, Vera, and her son, John, 5. The girl was eaten from the car and fell on her head on the pavement. Although dazed, she was not injured. Both children were taken into the home of Frank A. Huber, where they were cared for until taken to their home later in the morning.

Mrs. Borland was the only occupant of the two machines injured, her left hand having been slightly cut and sprained.

In the Maryland car were the driver,
P. M. Clark, his wife and her mother,
Mrs. George Heints, also of Annapolis, and Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Powers of Cedar Rapids. As they were enroute from Annapolis to Cedar Rapids, having arrived in Marion only a few minutes before the accident occurred.

They stated that they had gone down Greenwood-st. with the intention of viewing the Harding home and were returning north after they had found Greenwood-st. blocked by a truck. They failed to see the traffic stop sign located on Greenwood-st. just south of Church.

Women in the Annapolis car as well as Mrs. Borland suffered severe nervous shocks as a result of the accident and were cared for in a residence nearby
until they had fully recovered.

The Maryland party planned to resume their trip to Cedar Rapids late today after their car underwent repairs.

MANY FATHERS, SONS HEAR CHAPLAIN REED

Speaker at Calvary Evangelical Church Stresses Need of Discipline

Fathers and sons occupied the entire center section of Calvary Evangelical Church at a well-attended Fathers and Sons service last night at the church.
The service was especially arranged for Father's Day.

In a sermon on the subject, "Fathers and Sons," Rev. J. O. Reed, chaplain of Ohio State Penitentiary, attributed the cause of crime among boys to be the lack of a spirit of fellowship between fathers and their sons. "Every father should be his son's pal," Reverend Reed said, "the great number of boys imprisoned in our reformatories and prisons today, and girls as well, I believe to be because there has been no such close relationship between the parents of those children and them."

In closing Reverend Reed stressed the need of discipline, enforced obedience
in the home, as essential to the welfare, morale of children.

Mrs. A. L. Wood was in charge of a special musical program which consisted of the number, "Faith of Our Fathers," sung by a women's chorus directed by Mrs. Wood, one selection by the Mizpah Class quartet, composed of Mrs. Elmer Rowley, Mrs. Otto Rueger, Mrs. Roy Medlam, and Mrs.
Philip Bender. Mrs. Bender also entertained with a vocal solo and Misses Geraldine Allen and Pauline Zachman with an organ and piano duo. Mrs.
J. W. Baker, church organist, played the organ offertory and postlude. Devotional were in charge of Mrs. E. F.
Tittelbaugh.

MAYOR'S AUTHORITY IS QUESTIONED IN APPEAL

M. J. Dugan, Xenia, Carries Liquor Case to State Supreme Court

Columbus, May 16—The question whether a mayor's court has jurisdiction to hear and try a person accused of violating state prohibition laws, instead of a municipal ordinance, is raised in a suit filed in the state supreme court today.

The case of M. J. Dugan, who asks the supreme court to reverse the action of the Green County courts which affirmed the decree of the Xenia mayor's court which found Dugan guilty of unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor.

Dugan's appeal was filed by Attorney F. L. Johnson, Xenia, who claimed the mayor's court erred in overruling an objection, made before any testimony was taken, raising the question of the mayor's jurisdiction to try the case.

MOTHER'S DAY SERVICES HELD AT WESLEY CHURCH

Members of Choir Present
Special Music Program;
Large Congregation

Special services in observance of Mother's Day were held yesterday morning during the Sunday School and church hours at Wesley M. E. Church.
The pastor, Dr. J. D. Darling, spoke on the subject, "My Mother," and a special musical program was given by members of the church choir. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, including a basket placed in memory of the late Mrs. James D.
Darling. A large congregation attended.

During the Sunday School hour members of the choir sang "This Is Mother's Day," and Mrs. Isabelle Lyday, one of the oldest members of the church, contributed a reading, "Tribute to Abraham Lincoln's Mother." Mrs.
A. W. Lenhart and Mrs. E. E. Kemmerly sang a duet.

"A Tribute to Mothers," arranged to the tune of "Home Sweet Home," sung by the choir opened the church service.
M. J. Riemer sang the solo parts to the number, "Memories," and a prayer was offered by Dr. Darling. Mrs. Roy
W. Kauble, soprano, Miss Florence Upson, alto, M. J. Riemer, tenor and John Davis bass, sang a quartet number, "Down by the Window Where My Mother Used To Pray," and with members of the chorus assisted in the duet number, "She Is Calling Me," by Mrs.
A. W. Lenhart and Mrs. E. E. Kemmerly.

Last night, Rev. J. N. Clutter, of LaRue, delivered the sermon on the subject, "The Quest of Ages."

THREE FOUNTAIN PERS. PECCA REPORTED STOLEN

Three fountain pens and an automatic pencil were reported stolen from the desk of a Columbus business man
last night.

CORNERSTONE OF NEW CHURCH LAID BY PASTOR

First Reformed Congregation
Conducts Special Services;
Rain Changes Plans

Dedicating the new First Reformed Church, being erected on the site of the old, S. Prospect-st., to the "Worship and service of Almighty God," Rev.
Herbert F. Weckmueller, pastor of the church, laid the cornerstone in a beautiful service solemnized yesterday at noon at the church. S. H. Keller, chairman of the building committee,
assisted Reverend Weckmueller, John M. Briggs, Harry E. Wires, E. L.
Cleveland, and Ray Reidenbaugh, the remainder of the committee, John Haldane, contractor, and J. Lewis Ellis, architect, remaining on the platform.

Due to inclement weather, the entire service with the exception of the laying of the stone and dedication, was held within the Sunday School rooms, already completed.

Dayton Man Speaks
Dr. H. J. Christman, D. D., president of Central Theological Seminary, Dayton, gave the address of the afternoon in which he emphasized the duty of the new church, and, in fact, all churches to be to preserve and maintain to proclaim and to exhibit the Biblical truth in its purity, since the church of the pillar, the ground of truth.

"To preserve, maintain the truth," Dr. Christman said, "it must not be preached from the pulpit but sustained informally through church activities."
"Has preaching lost its power in the church?" If it has I pity the world today for no nation can become great, no community can be evangelized without the aid of the gospel. We need the church in America as the center of the nation. China is a pitiful example of the need of the church, of the gospel.
All the world needs preaching.

"We stand in Christ's stead to exhibit the truth, although we are imperfect and He perfect in all. Though the church as an organization be imperfect, it is the best, the only means of representing the Christ, the church is the pillar, the ground of truth," he said in closing. His text was taken from First Timothy, chapter 3, verse 15.
An appropriate benediction, "Christ Is Daily Proverb—"Passion and unkindness may give a wound that shall bleed and smart, but it is treachery that makes it fester."

In the light of all the longevity stories coming out of that state, we take it that the next best thing to acquiring immortality is to live in Vermont.

That we may refer to them correctly, it may be well to pronounce the name of Captain Charles Nungesser, "Charl Nuhn-jey-sair," and that of Captain Francois Coll, "Fraw-swah Ko-lee."

A dietitian told the National Restaurant Men's convention in Chicago that jazz is injurious to the digestion. This may explain the awful feeling patrons of night clubs have the next morning.

A Buffalo policeman killed one handit and wounded two others following a $40 hold-up which they had just staged. Other cities of the land might well get the plans and specifications of that particular policeman. There's a growing demand for his kind.

It must be understood that, if any problem is overlooked by the economic conference over in Geneva, it is purely through inadvertence and not owing to intention. The way it has started out makes this plain.

If the death sentences pronounced by that Long Island City court are executed according to schedule, women with the killing mania may get next to the fact that in one respect, at least, the country is picking up esteem for absolute equality of the sexes.

Apparently, it's no job to pass a bill over the governor's veto, here in Ohio, if the general assembly can be shown that the proposal means an additional burden upon the taxpayers—and that means upon everybody.

Scarcely a day passes that there is not a conference, or something along that line, to devise ways and means of advancing the best interests of this, that and the other class, saving and accepting always that class whose one distinction is that it's the goal for all other classes—the class in which we find the ultimate consumer.

The Marvel of the Century.

The more the world sees of Mussolini, the more of an enigma he becomes. The more his course and accomplishments are studied, the greater becomes the wonder over the mysterious power he wields over the masses of the Italian people. In all the world's history there will hardly be found the fellow of his dictatorship, a parallel to the great accomplishment he has worked for Italy, even an approach to the remarkably radical exactions he has made seemingly, at least, without incurring the ill-will of his followers. To them, apparently, whatever his utterance, whatever his course, it is right.

The latest manifestation of the Italian premier's power is his announcement of a ten per cent. reduction in the wage of labor and a similar cut in the cost of manufactures seemingly without arousing the slightest note of protest.

It is the first nation-wide application of the fundamental principle of the fascist-syndicalist state, the principle being the voluntary cooperation of capital and labor for the purpose of improved national economy.

Workingmen in all branches of Italian production, a Rome cable tells us, are called upon to make their contribution in the form of acceptance of a ten per cent. wage reduction. Employers also will be expected to make a corresponding contribution by proportionately reducing the cost of production, thereby making possible a substantial cut in the high cost of living in Italy and an increased sale of Italian products abroad.

There is also a general downward revision in the wages of all civil, military and state employees, including railwaymen and the clergy, who in Italy are paid by the state, in order to keep pace with the gradually falling cost of living as a consequence of the revaluation of the lire. The reduction decrees, which are to be applied according to a sliding scale, range from 100 per cent. of the increase granted in April, 1925, in the case of the highest paid employees to thirty per cent. of that same increase in the case of the most poorly paid ones.

There is also provision for a fifteen per cent. decrease in freight rates on all goods destined for export and substantial reductions ranging from twelve to twenty-five per cent. in freight rates for certain specified classes of goods. A slight decrease is made also in postal rates and a cut of twenty per cent. on "hurry" telephone rates.

No matter what the estimate of Mussolini as a menace to world peace, no matter what violence he may do to our theory of government, it must be conceded that his accomplishment in bringing Italy from government chaos and anarchy to its present condition is the most striking figure of the present-day world. It may be a case of "after Mussolini chaos," but while he is in being we must marvel at the man and the work he is doing.

The Country's Biggest Problem.

While the appalling floods which have caused the loss of hundreds of human lives and resulted in almost unimaginable destruction in the valleys of the Mississippi and the rivers tributary to it were not even so much as thought of by the general public till the recitals of their awful ravages began to appear in the press, the weather bureau seems to have anticipated them as early as last September as possibilities and as early as last October looked upon their coming as certainties, unless the winter and spring months of the present year proved to be marked by light precipitation.

In a recent article on the floods, H. C. Frankensfeld, who is at the head of the United States weather bureau's division of rains and floods, says: "We knew them"—last October—"that if the rains of the coming winter and spring were much above normal, we were going to have a big flood." The bureau, he explains, had taken note of unusual rainfall, which by October had caused $10,000,000 damage along the Arkansas and Neosho rivers. The fields did not dry up. They were full of moisture. Then Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and the Cumberland country suffered heavy rainfalls. Under normal conditions the streams of all these states should have shown low water at that season of the year. Instead their waters were high; bank high many of them. The December rains over the most of this territory were heavy and both the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers were in flood at the closing month of the year. There was heavy precipitation during the following winter months, and by March every river south of central Iowa flowing from the eastward into the Mississippi was beyond its banks. The storms which swept the valleys of the tributaries of the Mississippi from the Northwest, West and Southwest are so recent that it is not necessary to go into detail concerning them. They have been recalled repeatedly ever since the great flood has been on.

So here is a case where our weather bureau had reason to believe, seven or eight months ago, that a great flood was possible, and knew at least five or six months ago that it was probable. Yet such is our system, or lack of system, of flood control that we were utterly unable to prepare for what has come despite six months' notice of its coming. Not only this, but we have had flood after flood in the past, possibly none so great as the present, but still such floods as have caused mighty life loss and property loss reaching into hundreds of millions. These notices have been repeated beyond the memory of man, and yet adequate flood control is lacking.

Such a situation does not speak well for our government. Such a situation is too great to have been overlooked. True, much work and money have been given to haphazard protection, but there has been nothing along systematic lines. There have been countless demonstrations of this. Isn't it about time that this problem should be recognized as the greatest which confronts our land today? Isn't it time that it be taken up and considered, not in a hurried, careless, haphazard way; but by the utilization of the greatest engineering talent of the country, backed by a whole people without thought of partisan or sectional advantage?

Cole Blease insists that Senator Borah is the logical presidential candidate for Democracy, but he's going to have a lot of trouble making people believe that the Hon. Bill could qualify as logical in any line. Bill, himself, would probably be the first to deny it.

Some may expect the radio commission to regulate static, but if it can accomplish the elimination of the propaganda and the supposedly humorous monologues of some of the announcers, its efforts will not have been in vain.

Cal's liver is selling for sixty cents a pound in Detroit. Time surely has worked its changes. Our memory goes back to the time when the butcher would throw in two or three pounds of it with a sirloin or round steak, and if a youngster was getting the stuff, give him a big hunk of Bologna as well. "Them was the good old days."

It may be all right down in Chile, where the president resigned for the alleged purpose of regaining his health, but up in our own United States the patriots will be inclined to look with suspicion upon any course so radical as that as a route to health.

The American Forestry association contends that new varieties of trees which will grow to timber size in ten or fifteen years, instead of the half century it now takes, can be grown by selective breeding and hybridization. If such is the case, all the less excuse for delay in reforestation, not only that we may have cheaper lumber, but also as a bulwark against the menace of floods.

EREMITE.

"If I am laid
By other dead,
With stones to mark
My feet and head,
I will not suffer it."
She said.

"I will not stay,
Upon the night,
Of that first day,
I'll wake and push
The earth away."

"I'll rise and seek
A lonely place,
Where grass and roots
Will know my face,
My swift dead feet
Will leave no trace."

"When I have found
A quiet hill,
Where sun and storm
Have worked their will,
Then shall my swift Dead feet grow still."

"And there I'll lay me
Down and sleep,
And none will know,
And none will weep
Above my head,
But rain falls deep."

THE THINKER AND THE PROBLEM.

To Die Before Your Time.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A few days ago the Onondaga Health association sent me two very interesting wall cards. One is headed, "How To Live Before Your Time." The other is entitled, "How To Live 100 Years."

One of the ways to shorten life is recorded as follows: "Burn your candle at both ends—especially when tired. Never take a vacation. Tuberculosis flourishes on fatigue."

In contrast to this rule to shorten life, is one intended to add to your years: "Look upon over-fatigue as your enemy, and upon rest as your friend. Take at least eight hours of sleep. The voice of wisdom says to turn off the radio about 10 o'clock."

Overwork, overworry, under-sleep and the steady grind of monotonous effort at your job, whatever it may be, are dangerous practices. They are particularly dangerous to the young.

There are few advantages in being middle-aged. One of them is the seasoned quality of your tissues. You stand work and worry better than young folks do. You can get along with less play.

Young people who are subjected to hard work, excessive fatigue and loss of sleep are in danger of a physical breakdown, with the ever-present menace of tuberculosis. Tired and worn-out young men and women are the easy victims of this dread disease.

There is a scintilla hint about the radio in these Onondaga rules. It isn't difficult to get so interested in locating new stations and listening to fascinating programs, that bedtime is postponed to too late an hour. You had better resign earlier.

What do you think about taking a real vacation this year? I am thinking about going through the Panama canal to the Pacific coast. That means three weeks on a boat, with only two days in port during the whole time. Do you think you could get Arthur Brisbane to take a vacation like that?

But no matter what you do or where you go, get away from your regular duties for a couple of weeks. That sort of a vacation will do you good for a whole year. It will help to make real your hundred years of life.

Editorial Comment.

COOPERATION WITHOUT ALLIANCE.

The full report of Lord Balfour's speech on a possible Anglo-American alliance shows that the spoke with his usual philosophic grasp. He referred to the previous address by the American ambassador, Mr. Houghton, who, Lord Balfour said, had "recently poured scorn on an Anglo-American alliance." For himself, long known as an advocate of the most friendly relations with the United States, Lord Balfour asserted that he heartily agreed with that sentiment. He went on to remark that an alliance would mean the drawing up of minute agreements and protocols designed to meet the crisis or another. Perhaps he had in mind the Anglo-Japanese treaty of alliance, which was distinctly of this sort, and which came to be so great a source of embarrassment and apprehension to England that she was glad to get rid of it at the Washington conference of 1922. Lord Balfour headed the English delegation at that conference, and it is his testimony now that it "did actually accomplish more than had been accomplished anywhere else since the war by carrying out the great international ideal" of disarmament.

Not by an alliance, argued Lord Balfour, but by mutual understanding, by sharing ideas and hopes, could the only useful cooperation between America and Great Britain be attained. It is not a thing of treaties and documents. It is nothing which statesmanship can force. The fact, working together of the two countries for ends which both of their value and hold dear is independent of minor differences, even of trade rivalries, and rests upon fundamental beliefs which the two nations instinctively cherish. To bring about in a time of stress, where interests affecting all the world are involved, such quiet cooperation requires on both sides both sound judgment and delicate tact. It is a thing of the spirit, rather than of a pledged word. But in the new atmosphere into which the world has emerged since the war, with its abolition of secret treaties and its greater openness of diplomacy, it ought to be possible to establish unexpressed agreements which will work even better than if they had been written.—New York Times.

THE FLOOD OF LAWS.

Announcement is made that the National Industrial council at its coming convention will consider action to prevent the flood of laws which legislatures of the different states threaten to let loose. While the council will discuss industrial and agricultural affairs of the nation, the main topic of consideration will be the rapidly increasing number of new laws.

Some 40,000 measures came before the legislatures in session since the beginning of the year, about a fourth of which will become laws, if the ratio of the past holds good. The secretary of the council says that there is "a menace involved to our American liberties and important principles of law enforcement," a point that has been made repeatedly by courts and attorneys. New laws are being made so rapidly and in such number as to make complete enforcement impossible, and that creates disrespect for law.

From the announcement of one of the purposes of the coming convention it might be concluded that there is a general belief that all state legislatures think about is the introduction and passage of as many bills as they can line up support for among their colleagues. The public critic out against the growing number of laws, forgetting that it is not lawmakers, but the courts, who are to make the laws. There were numerous demands for the passage of bills, many of them of questionable merit and constitutionality.

If fewer laws are to be passed there will have to be fewer public demands that legislators fall in line and support measure after measure.—Youngstown Vindicator.

WOMEN IN HOTELS.

"Women in hotels are the most trouble and most damaging to property," says a chambermaid, who has been at this kind of work for eighteen years. "Next in order of damage and trouble are young men. Least troublesome are the older men who live alone. They are usually neat and orderly. Young men make much dirt and disorder from their cigars and cigarette ashes. Also, they sometimes burn holes in sheets or table covers, and they use the towels to wipe off their shoes. But even at that, they do less harm than an average woman. More damage is done by rouge on towels than by using towels to wipe off shoes. Then women have their facial powder or cold cream all over everything. They have many foolish little trinkets and odds and ends of clothing to be mended up, and they complain if one of these seems to be mislaid. Yes, and they are more likely to carry towels away with them than men are."—Nation's Business.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE FATTENSON.

A problem of our democratic form of government is the one of setting far-reaching and speedy action upon the welfare of the public. For example, the oriental fruit worm, the Japanese beetle, the citrus canker, the potato wart, the camphor scale, the gypsy moth, and the European corn borer all came into this country in a recent period of years. On account of unskillful opposition it took that much time to pass a federal law to put a check upon these pests.

America smoked 70,000,000,000 of cigars last year. This column is not conducting any crusade against tobacco. There are plenty of more important things to think about and talk about. But one can't help guessing how many books might have been bought with the money that was spent for 70,000,000,000 cigars.

Be careful. You never know when you may start a custom that will last 300 years or more. When Tom Hobson, who lived about 1630, used to rent horses in Cambridge, England, he made it a rule that every customer must take the horse out of the stable and lead it to the door. The customer did no choosing. Today we still have the expression, "Hobson's choice."

If human beings didn't have such an insatiable craving to be near each other this might be a happier world. In India half the population lives on one-half acre of land. The population all over the world grows greater while millions of fertile acres are uncultivated and unpopulated. Have the seething broadways of this country of ours killed the spirit of the homestead? All over the world there are strong men whose strength lies largely in the inherited spirit of the pioneers. There is still pioneering to be done for those who have the spirit and the courage.

Some Europeans may think Americans rich and selfish. They do not know all the facts. Do they know, for instance, that gifts at present to American universities are eighteen times as great as gifts to British universities? The best American has far more than money. He has imagination.

Views of Those in Public Eye.

WILLIAM H. KING.

William H. King was born at Fillmore City, Utah, June 3, 1864. He has served as senator from his state since 1917. King has been one of Utah's political leaders since the state's territorial days. When he served on the territorial legislature for three terms as its president of the upper house for one term. In 1894 he was appointed associate justice of the supreme court of the state, an office which he held until his election to the fifty-fifth congress. Senator King was educated at Brigham Young university.

Senator King, who was the subject of much unpleasant publicity recently as a result of having been forbidden entrance into Hayti by the president of that little republic, has at last broken away from the sifting of his personal affairs and is talking about extravagance in government. He says:

"The executive departments are making demands for appropriations greatly in excess of those granted by congress. Bureau and executive departments are constantly engaged in extending their functions and powers, and their efforts are unremitting to increase their personnel and secure larger appropriations. "Congress does not have a sufficient check upon the government expenditures and the use made of the appropriations."

"The British government makes constant and successive revision in the budget estimates. In the light of a critical examination of the expenditures and of the results actually realized by the expenditures, royal commissions examine the accounts and make the results of every appropriation made by parliament."

"In the interest of economy and efficiency one or more organizations should exist to check the appropriations of every department and every federal agency, and to ascertain how and where each dollar is expended, and whether the government receives adequate benefits and rewards therefrom."

Observations at Sea.

BY O. C. MINTINE.

Aboard the S. S. France, May 14.—This day plunges steadily through high running seas toward Havre. Nothing is so gallant as a ship or so terrifying as the ocean. Everybody has been seasick, including a lieutenant of the navy. Even the captain looks peaked to me. I did not know there was so much mal de mer in the world. At the dock in New York I was attracted to one of those virile voyagers who came to the ship sitting upon those of his yokels abill with respect of travel. He looked as though he would take no nonsense from a ship.

But he has been crumpled up in his deck chair all the way across with a complexion of luminous pea green. The only animated thing aboard seems to be my dog. Those two connected ladies who lived the pages of the New Yorker could get a lot of new "Whoops!" ideas from this ship.

Last night I crawled up to the dining-room. Stewards stood away at their doleful array of deserted white tables. Only one passenger was there. His head was cupped in his hands. I think he has been there for three days. I got one whiff from the kitchen and galloped—buckity, buckity—to my post at the rail.

Our cabin steward is one of those pink-cheeked Frenchmen with a superbly waxed mustache and an adolescent voice that jumps from alto to soprano with no apparent shifting of gears. He is killing his kindness. I asked for a small glass of orange juice and he brought a tray piled high with food—this morning he even brought sausages.

If you've never seen sausages when seasick, well, you have never really wanted to die. Most of those who have energy enough to hold up a book are reading "Elmer Gantry." I have confound my reading to the headlines of the ship's wireless newspaper. Even that takes my strength.

Every liner offers its quota of interesting personalities. On this voyage are Jay Gould, a mystery woman who wears a white transformation; Laurens Hamilton, grandson of Pierpont Morgan, a personable youth who sponsors the deck games; Coblenz, the San Francisco publisher; Wellington Cross, who has deserted the stage for a commercial career abroad; Walter Grey, a tailor and poet; George Agnew Chamberlain who is a novelist in his Paris apartment to finish a novel; Claude, the new French ambassador to America and Robert Weller, a distinguished French ace.

So far murder has had no place in my sustained career, but if that precocious child continues to trill and romp up and down the outside companionway something has got to be done.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lloyd are aboard. But they are from Chicago. They were finally compelled to tack a sign on their door announcing they were not the cinema celebrities to keep away the curious.

There goes the dinner gong. Another free banquet for the fish!

Tragedy stalks grimly upon the heels of romance on this voyage. Yesterday our meeting on ship board announced they would marry on their arrival in Paris and at the wireless office this afternoon I could not help but notice a message on the counter reading: "Charles is dying of pneumonia."

Tonight as a full moon shimmered the deep with its tangerine glow a four-masted schooner—like an ancient galleon—drifted lazily across our bow. Prismatic looking seamen pressed to the side and sang. Land is not far away. Hey, hey! To say nothing of ro-de-o-de-vo-vo.

I am reliably informed that one of the passengers who has not been seen on deck once during this trip is the manufacturer of a new sick panacea. That's the sort of high-rolling journey this was.

Stephenson asks for a temporary parole on the plea that only through such action can he expose the machinations of his enemies and have the $200,000 which still remains of a fortune he lost in a stock market crash.

The petition, 18 pages long, full of his characteristic outlandish vituperation, is the most comprehensive defense Stephenson has ever made. During his trial for murder at Nashville, Ind., he did not take the stand and his defense lacked spirit.

KONJOLA ENDED
HER SUFFERING
OF TEN YEARS

Lima, Ohio Lady Is Now Free
of Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles.

"I am certainly indebted Konjola in the highest terms, because it ended the suffering I had for 10 years and I am free of all my health troubles," said Mrs.

Coming "The Still Alarm"—adv.

MRS. EDITH HAMILTON
Edith Hamilton, well known Lima, Ohio lady, living at 121 South Pine St., that city in a recent statement about Konjola, this new advanced medicine which the Konjola Man is explaining to large crowds daily at the Stump Pharmacy, (Stump and Sans), 121 South Main St., Marion.

"I had been doctoring a long time for my health troubles," said Mrs. Hamilton. "And tried almost everything in the drug stores of Lima and Chicago, where I formerly lived, but nothing did me any good. Recently I got Konjola and it turned out to be exactly what I had always been needing."

"Owing to weakness of the kidneys, I was subject to frequent night riding and pains across my back. I was always sore and aching in the mornings. I suffered with terrible headaches and dizzy spells. I was told this was due to liver trouble. My complexion was very unhealthy looking. I also had indigestion after nearly every meal, and my food would soon, causing an acid, gassy condition in my stomach."

"I began taking Konjola, and it made a change in me right away. I have taken six bottles in all, and I am like a different person entirely. My stomach never gives me any trouble, and my food always agrees with me. I am not subject to night riding, because my kidneys are strengthened, and the pains do not come in my back like they used to. I never have headaches or dizzy spells. My complexion is clear and healthy."

"Yes, a wonderful change has come over me in general, since I got Konjola, and I know I can't recommend this medicine."

"The Konjola Man is at the Stump Pharmacy, (Stump & Sans), 121 South Main Street, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this genuine. Free sample given.—Adv.

O'Brien Boy
Thin and Pale

In a Little Over Two Months Gained Eleven Pounds

As a body builder, an appetite exciter, and to make weak, skinny boys and girls sturdy, strong and full of energy there is nothing like Cod Liver Oil—any physician will tell you that. But it's vile, horrible stuff to take, and is apt to upset your stomach, so now doctors are prescribing and wise parents are buying McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—sugar-coated, and as easy to take as candy.

The son of George G. O'Brien of Mahwah, N. J., was thin and pale and did not get enough nourishment from his food. In a little over two months, he gained eleven and one-half pounds, and looks and feels one hundred per cent. better.

Mothers, if any of your children are weak, thin or puny, give them these tablets, as directed for 30 days, and watch them gain flesh and health from day to day—they seldom fail—but if the unusual should happen and you are not supremely satisfied with results—your druggist is authorized to return your money.

Be sure—always—to get the original and genuine McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets 60 cents at any druggist in America. Thousands of boxes sold daily.—Adv.

TWO ARE EXONERATED IN AUTO, TIRE THEFTS

Jay Miller and Cloyse Jenkins Released When Police Get Confessions

J. S. Miller, 225 S. 28th st., and Cloyse Jenkins, 197 Wilson st., arrested last week with Fred Harlow, 1150 E. Socially-Inclined Are Not Eager for Turkish Post

Angora, Now Capital of Turkey, Mighty Undesirable Place

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Social competition is not expected to be very keen for the post of ambassador to Turkey, vacant ever since World War broke out, but soon to be filled by now that President Mustafa Kemal Pasha and Uncle Sam have fixed things up diplomatically.

The Ottoman embassy was a nice berth in the old days, when the sultan reigned, with his capital in Constantinople. Constantinople is a beautiful city, in general. It has been pretty tumble-down for many a long generation, but it had a swell European quarter. Its right on one of the world's big main-traveled roads, with tourists coming and going, was ships docking in and out, lots of aristocratic companies to visit with and plenty of brilliant entertaining going on.

But President Kemal's capital is Angora. The very reasons that made Constantinople a desirable place are exactly the reasons why Kemal moved away from there. He said Constantinople was too capital, which made it too easy for foreigners to butt in. In fact, he complained it was so situated that the "powers," whenever they felt like it, could send raiding right into the Bosporus and shell him out of house and home.

He explained that his ideal of a capital was some place well inland where the Turkish government could run things to suit itself.

HE found it in Angora, and more, too. It's a peat-water burg, right in the midst of Asia Minor, hard to get into and hard to leave, with a raw, nasty climate in winter, and hotter than mustard, dry as an ash heap and gritty with dust the rest of the year; not a modern convenience to its name.

It's a typical one-horse Turkish town of the time of the Arabian Nights. It never was intended to have a capital, and the diplomats literally were hard put to it to find shelter when they landed there. They could stand native accommodations, and there weren't any even of those.

WHEN President Kemal moved to Angora the diplomatic corps tried to get him to let them stay in Constantinople and do business with him at long range.

Kemal said no—they could come to Angora or go home.

The negative side won. Contests and games were enjoyed, and refreshments of fruit salad and cakes were served by the committee.
